RISK CONSULTING

Minimize risks systematically.

Keeping an eye on the big picture.

As industrial enterprises increase their international operations, the need to implement a global risk management solution is becoming more important. The basis for this is functioning risk engineering, which enables comprehensive risk evaluation along the entire value chain. With implementation of proper loss prevention measures, global loss exposures, especially within the Supply Chain, can be limited.

Global know-how

HDI Risk Consulting offers its customers worldwide access to some 170 engineers and experts from a wide range of technical disciplines with professional expertise across all Lines of Business.

Support for the identification of transport risks is provided by experts like:

- Captains (Master mariner)
- Marine engineers
- Packaging specialists
- Mechanical engineers
- Anti-theft experts (Crime intelligence)
- Supply chain managers
- Business Interruption specialists

From transport enquiries to support

HDI Risk Consulting performs intensive research on the cause of losses and is permanently working on optimizing loss prevention. Clients can count on competent advice and support by our local experts for upcoming transports as well as for complex conception and planning.

The main focus points of Marine Risk Engineering are:

- National and international cargo transports as well as value chains
- Project cargo, i.e. plant construction, chemicals, energy and paper production
- Automobile manufacturing and supplier logistics
- Cold chain risk control including pharma (GDP)
- Packaging technology
- Renewable energy
- Onshore/Offshore
- Steel and commodities
- Protection against theft
- Customer training/Know How transfer

In addition to transport insurance, our experts provide support related to transport planning, packaging, storage conditions, cargo handling as well as when selecting transport means and international itineraries. Of course, we include the subcontractors you work with.
